Key words: Annales, Procès-Verbaux, Traductions et Reproductions, collation, new taxa publication dates, Zoological Record.

Abstract: The Société (Royale) Malacologique de Belgique was the first society in Europe solely dedicated to malacology, and issued several journals. The main journal was the Annales, which was divided into several parts: the Mémoires and Bulletins contained many descriptions of new taxa of molluscs, but also of other phyla. Some of these descriptions appeared first in the Procès-Verbaux des Séances de la Société (Royale) Malacologique de Belgique before they were included in the Bulletins. Collations of both journals are here provided. We have listed most of the new molluscan taxa introduced in these journals in the Appendix - indexing all the volumes of Bulletins and Procès-Verbaux, but the Mémoires only for the period 1863-1887 - giving their correct publication date.

Introduction: The Société (Royale) Malacologique de Belgique (hereafter SRMB) was the first society in Europe solely dedicated to malacology, and its history certainly deserves more attention than the papers written in French by Cogels (1887), Duchamps (1982), and Dhondt (1989). The journals of the SRMB contain many contributions, not only from local members but also from international colleagues, containing many new molluscan taxa, either not covered or incorrectly covered by the Zoological Record. Moreover, during the decades of its existence, the SRMB also published papers on other groups (notably Bryozoa and Foraminifera).

The journal Annales de la Société (Royale) Malacologique de Belgique (hereafter Annales), consisted of Mémoires and Bulletins, the latter being divided in Bulletins des Séances, Bulletin bibliographique, Bulletin des collections malacologiques and Liste des membres de la Société. During later years there was a separate section Institutions correspondantes.

Besides this journal there was a parallel journal Procès-Verbaux des Séances de la Société (Royale) Malacologique de Belgique (see below; hereafter Procès-Verbaux), which appeared from 1872 to 1898. Both journals were exchanged with several other societies, universities and other institutions all around the world. Currently the Annales is digitally available via the Biodiversity Heritage Library (BHL); the whole set is reproduced from the library of the Marine Biological Laboratory, Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution. Some volumes of the Procès-Verbaux are available online in scattered libraries, but at the moment of writing the whole set is not in BHL. There has also been a short-lived separate publication, Traductions et Reproductions publiées par la Société Malacologique de Belgique, of which the first volume is mentioned as being published in 1874 (Dewalque, 1875).

In the period up until 1902, when the Society merged with the Société Zoologique de Belgique, 37 volumes of the Annales and 27 of the Procès-Verbaux were issued. Unlike contemporary malacological journals, there was no appointed editor. However, it may safely be assumed that the subsequent secretaries of the SRMB did most of the work to ensure that all the hand-written (or during later decades type-written) manuscripts were correctly printed. As the publication of the Annales was often delayed, the dating of papers containing new taxa has been problematic.

After 1902, the journal continued under a slightly different title - Annales de la Société Royale Zoologique et Malacologique de Belgique - until March 1922 when the General Assembly decided to continue publication without reference to malacology in the title. A parallel process may be observed with the Société Géologique de Belgique, which had similarly structured journals and a large overlap in membership. This 1874 Liège-founded society should, however, not be confused with the Société Belge de Géologie, de Paléontologie et d'Hydrologie, which became the Société Belge de Géologie and was based in Brussels.

In this paper, we present a collation of both the Annales and Procès-Verbaux, which were published by the SRMB, give some historical context and present a list of new molluscan taxa which have not been listed or were incorrectly listed in major reference works.

Methods: The dates of publication are based on internal evidence as far as possible. For the date of publication, we have recorded the date when the Annales, preprints, and the Procès-Verbaux were deposited in the library by the secretary of the SRMB. However, in the meeting minutes of several years no mention is made of addition of these publications to the SRMB library; where applicable we have recorded the date when the minutes of a meeting were adopted at a later meeting as recorded in the Procès-Verbaux. In some of the later volumes of the Annales, indications concerning the publication dates are given at the bottom of the first page of the 'feuilles', and these have been listed accordingly in Table 1. For some of the volumes original wrappers, which provided a date (Figs 1-3), have been found. Both the Mémoires and Bulletins are presented as starting on page 1, although the two first pages are always unnumbered. Several other journals provided publication dates of volumes, mostly incomplete or only partial (either Mémoires or Bulletins), and in some cases the appearance of 'Fascicules' was mentioned. The journals consulted are listed below. In some of these journals the listing seems dubious; e.g., in Naturae Novitates a volume of the Annales is listed in January for the current year (cf. remarks in Table 1) several times. We assume that in such cases the previous year was meant. When there is a difference between the stated publication date on the title page ('18XX') and the actual publication date ('18YY') as presented in the Tables, this is displayed in references as "18YY ('18XX')".

Collation: The publication of the Annales was likely printed in parts and completion of the volumes was often delayed, but reprints of finished papers were distributed before the completion of the volume (i.e. they were comparable to current day advance online publications); they are indicated herein as 'preprints'.

Evidence for this procedure is indirect for the earlier volumes, but was explicitly mentioned by Crocq (1876: LII): "Nos procès-verbaux ont paru tous les mois et ont été régulièrement distribués. Nous avons passé, au mois de février de cette année, une convention avec un nouvel imprimeur, pour la publication de nos Annales à partir de 1876 (tome 1^{re} de la seconde série). Cette convention est plus avantageuse que l'ancienne et il y a tout lieu de croire que ce volume paraîtra en son temps. Le tome X (1875) n'est pas encore terminé, parce que plusieurs des mémoires qui doivent y entrer n'ont été adoptés que cette année. Les planches toutefois sont complètement achevées et plusieurs tirés à part ont déjà été distribués. Le tome IX (1874) a dû être divisé en deux parties. La première, qui équivaut à un volume entier, a paru dans le courant de l'année sociale actuelle. La seconde est à l'impression; cette partie n'a pu être adoptée définitivement qu'à la séance de mars 1876" [Our minutes were published monthly and distributed regularly. In February of this year, we signed an agreement with a new printer for the publication of our Annals from 1876 onwards (volume 1 of the second series). This agreement is more advantageous than the old one and there is every reason to believe that this volume will appear in due course. Volume X (1875) is not yet complete, because many of the papers to be included in it were only adopted this year. However, the plates are fully completed and several reprints have already been distributed. Volume IX (1874) has been divided into two parts. The first, which is equivalent to a whole volume, appeared in the course of the present social year. The second part is in print; this part could be accepted definitively only at the meeting of March 1876].

From 1868 onwards, the Secretary mentioned when either preprints from papers published in the Annales (either the Mémoires or Bulletins) or the printed minutes of previous meetings were deposited in the library in the minutes of the meetings. We have adopted the date of the meeting when this was recorded as the date of publication, as we may safely assume that these preprints were also distributed to the members (cf. also Nyst, 1872: LXII).

In 1871, it was decided by the Council on request of the General Assembly (Bulletins 6: LVIII) to distribute the monthly reports from the meetings directly to the members and the societies the publications were exchanged with. This became the Procès-Verbaux des Séances de la Société (Royale) Malacologique de Belgique, a separate journal according to Backhuys (1985), and their unamended contents (corrected where necessary) appeared later as the Bulletins in the Annales.

Additional to the analysis by Dhondt (1989), it should be remarked that authors from other European countries also published in these journals, some times their text being translated by Belgian members. These authors primarily originated from France, Austria or Italy, and some from England. This makes the Annales comparable to the Journal de Conchyliologie and Malakozoologische Blätter (cf. Breure & Fonatine, 2019), but it is remarkable that no German authors were involved.

Contrary to modern practices and as far as we are aware of, also the contemporary French and German malacological journals (Kabat & Coan, 2016; Breure & Fontaine, 2019; Neubert et al., 2020), the journals of the SRMB were not only distributed when volumes were complete. Preprints of papers were distributed when they had been typeset and printed ahead of their appearance in the completed parts or volumes. This impacts authority and dating as meant in the Code, and subsequently impacts the Principles of synonymy and homonymy. Thus whenever these papers contained descriptions of new taxa, their actual publication date (i.e. the date they were mentioned in secondary literature, including later volumes of Procès-Verbaux or Bulletins) becomes important for correct listing in subsequent taxonomic works. For this collation we used both the meeting minutes as well as external sources to extract as many publication data as possible. The serial publications of Cossmann on the Eocene fauna of the Parisian basin - which appeared in the volumes 21-24, with additions in volumes 28, 31, and 36- were made possible by a governmental subsidy (Crocq, 1887) and were also issued by subscription (Fig. 4). The collation for the Annales is given in Table 1, and may be summarised as follows:

1. Each volume contained the information presented and discussed at the meetings in a certain calendar year, except volumes 1 (which covered 1863 to 1865) and 2 (which covered 1866 to 1867).

2. Volumes did not contain actual publication dates, except volumes 30 and 31 (on title page), volume 34 (list of distribution dates of 'feuilles'), and volume 35 (on first page of 'feuilles').
3. For other volumes internal evidence was used when available, supplemented with information from other sources as mentioned above. None of the 37 volumes was published in the year that is on the title page, and only few appeared in separate parts ('Fascicules').
4. Preprints of papers were distributed when they had been typeset and printed; their deposition in the SRMB library as mentioned in the meeting minutes is regarded as date of distribution. Only the preprints that contained new taxa are listed in Table 1.

The Procès-Verbaux were quickly printed and distributed (cf. e.g., Colbeau, 1874: XCII; Roffiaen, 1882: CXXXII), and they were usually adopted at the next monthly meeting. Exceptions were the (Extraordinary) General Assemblies, when the Presidential Address was held and no lectures were given. The current collation for Procès-Verbaux (Table 2) is modified from Backhuys (1985), with publication dates based on internal evidence.

The short-lived publication Traductions et Reproductions only contained translations of papers which had originally been published in England. There are some announcements in the Procès-Verbaux and the published papers are presented below. Despite the fact that references can be found to "Tome I" (e.g. Anonymous, 1875b) and a second one in progress (Dewalque, 1875), these papers mainly seem to have been distributed as reprints (e.g. Anonymous, 1875a). Due to financial constraints the members had to pay for these publications separately (Anonymous, 1874: CXXVI). We have been unable to see any volumes and the data below are the bibliographical data found on WorldCat (<https://worldcat.org>). If the Traductions et Reproductions are considered as a journal, it was a remarkable one and it was discontinued very swiftly.

New taxa: Given the fact that 1) none of the volumes of the Annales were completed in the year given on the title page; 2) the meeting minutes with the content of lectures were quickly printed, distributed and adopted at (generally) the next meeting; and 3) preprints from the Mémoires were distributed ahead of completion of the volume, the actual date of publication of new taxa is far from straightforward. Especially in the earlier volumes new taxa (either as species or varieties [the latter often as nomina nuda]) were introduced that do not always seem to have been included in reference works (e.g., Ruhoff 1980), in the Zoological Record, or GeoRef (bibliographic records for geosciences). And although - as far as these taxa have not been mentioned in later literature - some of these might be considered nomina oblita - their correct publication date should be determined and used. The molluscan taxa introduced have been listed in the Appendix, arranged as follows: a) index to species-group names, b) index to genus-group names, c) index of species-group names by genus. Ruhoff (1980) only covered data from 1850 to 1870, hence only the first volumes of the Annales. All volumes of Bulletins and Procès-Verbaux have been indexed for new taxa, but the Mémoires only partially. Since coverage by the Zoological Record was expanded (from extant taxa to including indexing paleontological literature) starting with volume 23 (1888), Mémoires after volume 22 (1887) have been excluded from the list.

Discussion: The minutes in the Procès-Verbaux, respectively Bulletins, give a quite precise impression of the meetings. Manuscripts were presented at the meetings, after which usually two rapporteurs gave a detailed opinion during a following meeting. Contents presented during lectures were often discussed during the same meeting. It was a sort of peer review avant la lettre. For a historical overview of the role of rapporteurs during the development of scientific journals in the 19th century, see Csiszar, 2020: chapter 2 and 3. The collation of the Annales proved to be a rather complicated case, especially since records of the first volumes are scarce. In researching this collation we became aware of a remarkable phenomenon, as we found references in sources deviating for (many) months from the actual publication date (see several illustrations in grey in the notes of Table 1; note that these were the earliest references and other journals gave a reference even later). This might be a caveat for future collations or bibliographies when using these often quoted sources.

When leafing through the volumes one cannot escape the impression that the activities of the members were deviating from the name and aim of the Society, many members being more interested in geology and palaeontology than in the distribution and anatomy of recent mollusca. An observation also made by Roffiaen (1882) in his Presidential Address at the General Assembly and which is evidenced by the numbers presented by Dhondt (1989: 149): only for the period 1865-1875 was the balance between recent and fossil papers more or less 50/50; in later years it was ~ 25/75.

Cogels, during his Presidential address of 1885, remarked "Les travaux de la Société, même ceux du domaine exclusif de la malacologie, sont trop peu connus" [The work of the Society, even in the exclusive field of malacology, is too little known]. We hope that this paper will help to mitigate this deficiency, even after all the years that have passed.

Acknowledgements: We are grateful to Jonathan Ablett for linguistic advice and to Alan Kabat for his very useful comments and suggestions on a previous version of this manuscript. The first author is very thankful to Marianne van der Wal (Naturalis library, Leiden) for making a copy of a rare paper available during the Covid19-restrictions. An anonymous reviewer made useful remarks to the manuscript, which is gratefully acknowledged.

Each volume consisted of Mémoires and Bulletins, the latter essentially the same as the Procès-Verbaux (see Table 2). Primary source for publication date in bold print; references in secondary sources, additional to those in Bulletins, are in grey type. Preprints of papers (indicated by a section sign § in the Notes) were distributed before the volume was completed and have been listed only if these contained new taxa and were explicitly mentioned in the Bulletins or in secondary sources. Remarks: #1 – Some unspecified papers from this volume were distributed earlier as reprints (e.g., BSMB 8: XXXV, LXXIV, CVIII); #2 – ‘Année 1893’ is a clear lapsus, possibly refers to 1892; #3 – ‘Année 1896’ is a clear lapsus, possibly refers to 1895; #4 – ‘Année 1897’ is a clear lapsus, possibly refers to 1896; #5 – The year ‘1901’ in the text of the minutes is an evident lapsus for 1902.

Appendix: New molluscan taxa described in the Annales (Mémoires) 1-22 (1863-1887), Annales (Bulletins) 1-37 (1863-1902), and Procès-Verbaux 1-27 (1872-1898), which are mostly not or incorrectly listed in reference works (Ruhoff, GeoRef, Zoological Record).

Remarks: Taxa preceded by an asterisk (*) have not been found in Ruhoff (1980), GeoRef (1666-2020), or Zoological Record (1864-2020) [consulted via the online database]; in these online databases some taxa described in Annales (Mémoires) 24 (1889) were erroneously not listed and have also been included herein. Taxa preceded by a double dagger (‡) were found in these reference works with incorrect data. Species-group names in their index are followed by the remaining part of the basionym between square brackets. Subgeneric names in the index or genus-group names are followed by the genus between square brackets. Dates according to Tables 1 and 2. Nomina nuda and names introduced for teratological specimens have been excluded.
